Why don't you participate in building an international order on free, fair and transparent rules with your writing, photos and social media actions taken during the sessions?
Global dialogue is possible even through social media.

The Japan Institute of International Affairs (JIIA), founded in 1959, is an independent nonpartisan policy thinktank specializing in foreign affairs and security policy. On top of a wide range of research programs, the institute promotes dialogues and joint studies with other institutions and experts at home and abroad, and makes foreign policy proposals to the government, and disseminates information on international relations to the public. The institute, together with a large network of affiliated scholars, aims to serve as an indispensable resource on international affairs in a complex world.

The 1st Tokyo Global Dialogue

Overarching Theme

Is it possible to build an international order based on free, fair and transparent rules?

The rules-based international order now faces serious challenges such as the rise of nationalism and increasing signs of unilateralism. This dialogue will discuss whether it is possible under such circumstances to rebuild a free, fair and transparent rule-based international order.

Ho'oh room (1st floor)

Welcoming Remarks by President Kenichiro SASAE and Release of JIIA Annual Strategic Report

Kenichiro SASAE
President, JIIA

Kenichiro Sasae joined the Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs after graduating from The University of Tokyo in 1974. His distinguished and illustrious diplomatic career includes prestigious assignments as Executive Assistant to the Prime Minister, Director-General of the Economic Affairs Bureau, Director-General of the Asian & Oceania Affairs Bureau, and Vice Minister for Foreign Affairs. During his period of service in Tokyo, he represented the Japanese Government in the Six-Party Talks on North Korean issues. He also worked as Political Director for the G-8 Summit. From 2012-2018, he was Ambassador of Japan to the United States. Subsequently, in June 2018, Ambassador Sasae was appointed President of The Japan Institute of International Affairs to head Japan's premier foreign affairs think tank.

Plenary Session 1 : Challenges to democratic political system and the liberal international order

Day 1 / 11:40 - 13:10, Mon., Dec. 2

Ho'oh room (1st floor)

The waves of anti-globalism and populism sweeping over the international community are undermining the foundations of democratic political systems in countries around the world and posing challenges to the liberal international order. This session will identify the background causes of these developments, and then discuss the actions that national leaders should take both within their own countries and in the international community.

Plenary Session 2 : The new US-China strategic rivalry and the international community

Day 1 / 14:00 - 15:30, Mon., Dec. 2

Ho'oh room (1st floor)

There is an increasingly prevalent view that China, which has achieved a remarkable rise in recent years, has assumed the mantle of the Cold War-era Soviet Union in challenging the post-WWII US-led international order, and that the US is striving to fend off this challenge. This session will examine the validity of this viewpoint and discuss how the US, China, Russia, Europe, Japan and other countries should and could behave.

Breakout Session ① : Seeking out a new order in the Indo-Pacific Region (BRI and FOIP)

Day 1 / 16:00 - 18:00, Mon., Dec. 2

Ho'oh room 1 (1st floor)

Does China's BRI (Belt and Road Initiative) constitute an extensive challenge to the regional order in terms of connectivity (investment, cash flow, communications networks, infrastructure improvements, capacity building, etc.)? In this session, experts from relevant countries within the region will broadly address this question and its relations with the FOIP (Free and Open Indo-Pacific vision) advocated by Japan, the US and others, in terms of security, economics, finance and development.

Breakout Session ③ : Challenges to arms control and nuclear non-proliferation regimes

Day 1 / 16:00 - 18:00, Mon., Dec. 2

Kiri room (1st floor)

While worsening US-Russia relations and the US' withdrawal from the INF so far offer little hope for bilateral arms control negotiations between the US and Russia, China has also rejected the idea of participating in arms control talks on intermediate-range nuclear weapons. Furthermore, the US' withdrawal from the Iran nuclear deal and Iran's reaction as well as the stalemate in the North Korean denuclearization process continue to pose challenges to the entire nuclear non-proliferation regime. This session will discuss the best direction for future efforts in this regard.

He is now chairman of the International Institute for Strategic Studies in London, chairman of the board of Trinity College Dublin's Long Room Hub for Arts & Humanities, and chairman of the Japan Society of the UK. He lives in Dublin and Oxford. Mr. Emmott is the author of 14 books variously on Japan, Asia, the 20th century and Italy. The latest English work, "The Fate of the West - the battle to save the world's most successful political idea", was published in 2017; the latest Japanese work, "Japan's Far More Female Future", was published by Nikkei in June 2019. He was presenter and co-author of a documentary about Italy, "Girlfriend in a Coma" (2013) and executive producer of "The Great European Disaster Movie" (2015), both shown on the BBC.

Plenary Session 3 : Is it possible to achieve sustainable and inclusive economic growth?

Day 2 / 9:30 - 11:00, Tue., Dec. 3

Ho'oh room (1st floor)

Economic globalization continues to widen economic disparities within individual countries and between developed and developing countries. Meanwhile, with a rising global population, there are heightening concerns about access to healthcare and swelling numbers of migrants and refugees. This session will discuss whether it is possible to achieve sustainable and inclusive economic growth in the face of these difficulties and, if so, what measures should be taken.

Plenary Session 4 : Digitalizing societies and the international order

Day 2 / 11:10 - 12:40, Tue., Dec. 3

Ho'oh room (1st floor)

Advances in digital technologies have radically improved convenience across all aspects of society, from state administration and industry to individual lifestyles. At the same time, however, negative phenomenon such as cyberattacks against various targets, bitter divisions in public opinion due to the proliferation of fake news, interference in the elections of other countries, and national surveillance and data hoarding by authoritarian states have been adversely affecting the international order. This session will consider these elements in the need for the international community to construct common rules compatible with advances in digital technologies.

Breakout Session ④ : Challenges to multilateral systems

Day 2 / 14:40 - 16:10, Tue., Dec. 3

Ho'oh room 1 (1st floor)

With a "self-interest first" attitude gaining greater traction among countries, confidence in multilateral systems that have bolstered the post-WWII order is wavering. Given the need to maintain and restore the functions of these multilateral systems for the sake of preserving multilateralism, this session will feature experts from various fields discussing specific approaches to accomplishing this end.

Breakout Session ⑤ : Developments surrounding the Korean peninsula and steps toward forming a new order

Day 2 / 14:40 - 16:10, Tue., Dec. 3

Ho'oh room 2 (1st floor)

The historic North-South and US-North Korea summit meetings and other developments since last year had given rise to expectations of an official end to hostilities, a lifting of sanctions, and the conclusion of a peace treaty, but a divergence of views between the US and North Korea over North Korea's denuclearization has brought the process to a halt. With no clear prospect being spelled out on future plans, experts from the countries involved will discuss the actions that these countries should take to establish a new order for the East Asia region as a whole.
